

Nixon Hopes Withdrawal To Be Peace Sign

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon, heading home from the Midway summit conference, hopes his decision to begin withdrawing U.S. troops from South Vietnam will be read by Communist peace negotiators as a significant signal.

Nixon will get a formal Washington welcome from Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and other dignitaries and will deliver "general remarks."

His comments will be broadcast live by some networks.

The Cabinet and some members of Congress from both parties will participate in the welcome, with Nixon accorded full military honors.

In early evening, Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress meet with Nixon in the White House to get a first-hand report on his Midway meeting Sunday with President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

White House sources, who declined to be identified by name, said Nixon and his aides believed the Midway sessions were successful and that administration objectives were achieved.

They said Nixon was hopeful that his decision to withdraw 25,000 U.S. troops from South Vietnam by the end of August would convey a significant message to the other side.

The bulk of the 25,000 will be combat troops, the said, and asserted this fact should underscore the intended signal.

While Nixon and Thieu indicated more troops will be pulled out later, the White House said there is no numerical target for the year.

Initial reaction to the troop withdrawal from North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, was to denounce it as mere propaganda.

White House sources said the initial negative reaction was predictable.

1st Army Nurse Killed In War

SAIGON (AP) — Lt. Sharon Lane, an Ohio girl who liked the Vietnamese people and had compassion for the Viet Cong wounded, is the first U.S. Army nurse to die from hostile fire in the Vietnam war.

The 26-year-old nurse from Canton, Ohio, was assigned to the 312th Evacuation Hospital at Chu Lai on April 29 and went to work in the Vietnamese ward. She was offered a transfer to another ward a few days ago but turned it down.

"She liked it here and wanted to stay," said Capt. Lorraine W. Montz of Phoenixville, Pa. "She liked the Vietnamese, and they appreciated her tenderness and concern for them."

At 5:55 Sunday morning, Lt. Lane was on duty in one of the two quonset huts that form the 312th's Vietnamese ward.

"We were just relaxing before starting to wake the patients up at 6 a.m.," said Lt. Patricia E. Carr of Louisville, Ky. "I was sitting behind the desk, and Lt. Lane was sitting on an empty bed."

Capt. John D. Medlin Jr. of Greensboro, N.C., commander of the hospital detachment from Winston-Salem, said an enemy rocket exploded between the pair of huts and "tossed shrapnel through both walls."

Lt. Lane was hit in the throat and died within seconds.

A Vietnamese child also was killed, and 23 Vietnamese and two Americans were wounded.

Another nurse, Lt. Sharon Meyer of New Prague, Minn., recalled that Lt. Lane "often said how badly she felt for the Vietnamese people. She even had compassion for wounded VC."

"She would say, 'It's a bad situation for them, too.'"

Burger Confirmed As Chief Justice

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, moving with polished efficiency against a tiny, ineffectual group of dissenters, has overwhelmingly confirmed Warren E. Burger to be the nation's 15th chief justice.

After the few vocal critics failed to win a delay Monday, the Senate by a 74-3 vote put its stamp of approval on the 61-year-old Burger, nominated by President Nixon to succeed Earl Warren, who retires later this month.

The dissenters claimed consideration of the nomination should have been prolonged in order to hold a more careful and extensive look into the appointment, particularly in view of the Abe Fortas affair.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., asked at one point during the rambling three-hour debate, "Why vote today?" When Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said there had been nearly no opposition to the appointment, Fulbright retorted: "There wasn't any opposition to Fortas, either."

Closer Look

The Arkansas senator said he knew of no reason to oppose Burger, a 14-year veteran of the federal Court of Appeals, but he thought the Fortas incident demanded a closer look at any new

Supreme Court appointment.

Fortas quit the court last month following disclosures that he had agreed to accept $20,000 a year from Louis E. Wolfson, a Florida industrialist now in jail.

Fortas' 1965 nomination to the court went through the Senate in a fashion similar to the dispatch of the Burger appointment, although his selection last year to be chief justice fell short in a flap over his financial dealings, among other things.

The Burger success leaves Nixon with another court position to fill—the seat left vacant by Fortas' resignation. The President has indicated he will move quickly to bring the high court to full strength.

Most of the appointment supporters pointed to Burger as a tough man on law violators who won't go along with the activist and social-liberal nature of the court under Warren.

McCarthy Votes No

They indicated hope Burger and the next appointee will swing the court into another orbit following the more conservative pre-Warren positions.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said he voted no "for reasons somewhat personal and political." Burger, a former Republican party official in Minnesota, was active against Mc-Carthy in the 1952 congressional campaign. McCarthy said Burger misrepresented his position and appealed to emotionalism.

Wisconsin Democrat Gaylord Nelson, said he cast a nay vote because he simply didn't know enough about Burger. I was "mistaken last time," Nelson said about his yes vote for Fortas.

The third naysayer, Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, also protested the confirmation process and noted the Senate Judiciary Committee, headed by Eastland, had heard not a single opposition witness in its brief hour and 40 minute hearing.

Nixon Told To Yank Deposits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the powerful House Banking Committee, today urged President Nixon to withdraw government deposits from banks that raised their prime interest rate to an unprecedented 8½ per cent.

In a letter to the President, Patman, D-Tex., charged the boost announced by the banks Monday was a conspiracy that threatens to force the country into a severe recession.

"Mr. President," Patman wrote, "your office has great powers to end these high interest rates and to prevent monetary policy from forcing the country into a severe recession. I respectfully urge you to exercise this power in the public interest."

Patman also called on the administration to instruct the Federal Reserve Board to cut off the discount privilege from the interest-raising banks, which enables them to raise ready money.

Pope Paul VI In Geneva To Address Labor Meet

GENEVA (AP) — Pope Paul VI flew to Geneva today for a controversial 12-hour visit designed to dramatize the Roman Catholic Church's concern for the working man and for the cause of Christian unity.

The Pope's schedule in this center of Protestantism included a major address to the International Labor Organization, a meeting and common prayer with the leaders of the World Council of Churches, and an open-air Mass at which 100,000 worshippers were expected.

The official purpose of the papal visit—Pope Paul's seventh trip outside Italy since he became Pope six years ago—was to help celebrate the 50th anniversary of the ILO with a reaffirmation of the principles of social justice expressed in his encyclical Populorum Progressio—On the Development of Peoples.

First In 500 Years

But the visit to the World Council of Churches, which is made up of 235 denominations outside the Roman Catholic fold, was expected to far overshadow his call at ILO headquarters, and his speech there.

Never before had a Pope visited Geneva since John Calvin made it an intellectual center of Protestant thought and practice 500 years ago.

Geneva's population of 300,000 is now almost equally divided between Catholics and Protestants, and many of the latter considered the Pope's presence an affront to local tradition. Many of the protests, in private and in newspaper editorials, spoke out against the ceremonies planned for the visit. Many restated the historic Protestant objections to the doctrine of papal primacy.

But the fact that the Pope enlarged his visit to the ILO to include a call on the world's leading group of Protestant churches was hailed by leaders of the World Council as an ecumenical move of great significance.

Fellowship

"This is not a mere courtesy visit," said one official of the council. "This is a visit of Christian fellowship."

Though many considered the papal visit the most dramatic gesture ever made by a Roman pontiff toward healing the breach between his Church and the Protestants, there were no illusions among religious leaders about a speedy end to the break.

Pope Paul himself told his Secretariat for Christian Unity two years ago that he considered himself to be "undoubtedly the gravest obstacle in the path of ecumenism." He referred to the widely held view that the Protestants will never reunite with Rome as long as it retains the doctrine of papal primacy.

Even so, the visit has stirred a feeling of optimism along with the protests. Advocates of Christian unity expressed the opinion that despite the many serious obstacles to ecumenism, feelings of fellowship between the Roman Catholic and Protestant worlds could only be encouraged by the Pope's gesture.

Police Hope For Clues To End Sexual Assaults

ANN ARBOR (AP)—A single gunshot wound in the head of an attractive young woman today provided a slim link which police hope will end a grisly chain of six brutal slayings in the Ann Arbor area in the past 22 months.

The shot—coupled with an apparent sexual assault, a beating and multiple stab and slash wounds, point to a single killer.

Since August 7, 1967, the bodies of six young women have been found within a seven-mile radius of Ann Arbor, home of the University of Michigan. Two of the victims were coeds at Eastern Michigan University in nearby Ypsilanti.

Stabbed And Shot

Until Monday, the one death that didn't fit was that of Jane Louise Mixer, 23, a student at the U-M law school from Muskegon, Mich. Unlike the others, her body, which was found March 21 in a cemetery near Ypsilanti, was fully clothed and there was no evidence that she had been raped.

Perhaps most important, she had been killed by several shots in the head. All the other victims had been stabbed or strangled.

The latest victim, however, was stabbed once in the chest and was shot once in the head. In addition to suffering multiple slash wounds of the body, Washtenaw County Sheriff Douglas J. Harvey said it could not immediately be determined which of the wounds was the cause of death.

Single Killer

While Harvey insists it is still speculation, he said he and his men now think they are looking for a single killer.

"There are similarities linking all of the deaths," he said.

Early efforts to identify the latest victim proved fruitless Monday night. Three Ann Arbor girls who had been reported missing turned out not to fit the identification of the dead girl. Police thought they had identified the girl and called the supposed parents to the morgue to identify the body. But the trail proved cold when the couple said the victim was not their missing daughter.

The victim was described as five feet, five inches tall, weighing 137 pounds with long dark hair. Police said she was between 18 and 20 years old.

No Suspects

She was dressed in a purple blouse, a white miniskirt and a multicolored striped coat. The coat had a label from Rusy's, a Kalamazoo, Mich., clothing store. No shoes were found on the body or at the scene.

An intensified search for the killer or killers was underway today. Washtenaw County deputies were assisted by the State Police Crime Lab, State Police from local posts and detectives from county sheriff's departments.

As of Monday night, however, Harvey reported there were no good suspects.

The body was found near a clump of bushes on an abandoned farm, one of many in the farmed-out area of northern Washtenaw County.

There was blood on the ground where the body was lying, but Harvey said he did not know whether the girl had been killed on the site or dumped there when already dead.

There is evidence at least some of the other victims were not killed at the sites where their bodies were found.

Found By Boys

The body was found about halfway between a broken-down farm house and the skeleton of what once was a barn. Three teen-age boys, apparently going to cut shrubbery, discovered the body about 4 p.m. Harvey said the girl had been killed sometime Sunday night.

The only neighbors within a quarter mile of the old farm, the Dale Higbeys, said they neither saw nor heard anything during the rainy night. They learned of the murder only when the boys came and told them to call the police.

Harvey said the murder, if there is a single killer, seems to be someone who knows the

400 Viet Cong Die In Fighting

SAIGON (AP) — Nearly 400 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed in heavy ground fighting Monday after a brief lull in the Vietnam war, military spokesmen reported today.

The 5th Marine Regiment reported killing 186 North Vietnamese soldiers in a two-day battle 22 miles southwest of Da Nang, and the U.S. Command said 137 enemy troops were killed in four other clashes involving American forces. South Vietnamese headquarters claimed 70 enemy killed in two fights in Tay Ninh Province.

American losses were 18 killed and 95 wounded. Six Saigon government troops were reported killed, and 16 were wounded.

A Marine spokesman at Da Nang said North Vietnamese troops attacked a platoon of the 5th Regiment Sunday night, "we called in artillery, and then the big battle started."

Heavy air strikes and artillery pounded fortified enemy positions during the night, and about 500 Marines attacked Monday morning.

The fighting raged on the outskirts of An Hoa, the Marines' regimental headquarters, and through the rich lowlands rice area until 3 o'clock this morning.

Hanoi Response

"But if the situation works out, perhaps we can escalate the withdrawals, just as the input of troops was escalated," he said.

The Alabama senator, a senior member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said any such withdrawals would have to depend on whether there was any response from Hanoi.

Cooper, long a dove, said in a separate interview he hopes for such a response which might lead to progress in the Paris negotiations.

"But if there is no such response, we should continue to arm the South Vietnamese and by stages withdraw all of our troops," he said.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., found reason to believe that what he said is the growing military capability of Saigon's troops will "enable us to make significant reductions in the numbers of American troops in

Graduation Exercises For Clean-Cut Kids

SOUTHFIELD (AP) — Graduation exercises at Southfield High School are for clean-cut kids, not bearded students. Not even a bearded honor student.

That was the decision of the school principal, Robert Hall, who was unanimously supported by the school board. It was also the decision of Oakland County Circuit Judge Robert Templin Monday when he said the school officials had the right to regulate the personal habits of its students at graduation.

"There is no basic right of a student to wear a beard during graduation ceremonies," Templin told David Mikol.

"Graduation ceremonies are privileges, and the school board has wide discretion to maintain dignity in such ceremonies."

Mikol eventually went to the American Civil Liberties Union, which filed suit Friday on his behalf in Oakland County Circuit Court.

His attorney, Wallace D. McLay, called the school's actions "capricious and arbitrary."

Templin said the ruling was not arbitrary but reflected the "conscience of the community." A survey sent earlier in the year to high school students and their parents brought a general school policy barring beards from official school functions.

All but 22 teachers of 130 at the school also signed a petition supporting the school's ruling.

Mikol, who sports a dark, full beard and heavy mustache, said Monday he had not decided whether to shave the beard off.

"It's up to me and my family now," he said. "I won't appeal the court's decision."

DAVID MIKOL, honor student at Southfield High School, found out in court that he could not participate in the school graduation exercises wearing his five-month-old beard. School officials have told him that he will still graduate. (AP Wirephoto)

Barton Reports On Isle Royale

The Escanaba Kiwanians were treated to a scenic tour of Isle Royale, nearest National Park, through the colorful slides and description by Gary Barton on Monday.

Barton, divisional manager of the Upper Peninsula Power Co., relied on experiences that he has had on his dozen or more trips to the island, as well as the geological information that he has studied, for his presentation.

Isle Royale can be reached by boat from the Keweenaw Peninsula, where a boat leaves every day to cover the 54 mile expanse of Lake Superior, or from Houghton, where the National Park boat Ranger III makes the trip every other day. There is also a mail boat which services the island from Grand Portage, Minn., and plane rides can also be arranged.

Barton prefers his personal boat, a 16 footer, when making these trips. A companion boat should also make the trip in case of breakdown, he added.

The island offers fine fishing for lake trout and whitefish; animal life is about the same as the Upper Peninsula as far as small game goes, but boasts a large moose herd, as well as a large concentration of wolves. There are also many miles of woodland trails over all parts of the island, he reported.

The only motor vehicles allowed on the island are two jeeps, one on each end of the island, which are operated by the National Park Service. Barton suggested that a September trip, rather than a June or July one would be more appreciated because there are many flies and other bugs during the early summer.

In club business, the Kiwanians are making plans for a Ladies Night outing on Monday, June 23. Jack Beck is chairman of the committee, and Lowell Sundstrom, Ed McCarthy and Jim Jacobs are members.

The short, fuzzy fibers that cling to the cotton seed are called "linters."

American Motors To Market New Car This Fall

DETROIT — American Motors Corp. confirmed Monday that the company will introduce an entirely new small car in the fall.

Roy D. Chapin Jr., chairman of American Motors, said the car will be a "totally new addition" to the line. The car, to be named the Hornet, will be smaller than anything currently being produced by American Motors.

Chapin confirmed what had been the subject of intense speculation for several months. American motors' 2,300 dealers throughout the country are being advised this week of the new 1970 product program. Chapin told newsmen in New York in April that the company was "well along" in developing new products to compete in the compact and import car market.

Chapin also told a group of Wisconsin civic leaders in May that the company plans to introduce one "entirely new product every six months for the next three years" starting this fall.

Pleads Guilty To Hijack Try

MIAMI (AP) — A 31-year-old Michigan man accused of threatening a stewardess with a shotgun during an abortive hijack attempt pleaded guilty Monday to interfering with the crew of an airliner.

Kenneth E. McPecker of Orchard Lake, Mich., earlier had pleaded innocent to a charge of piracy filed after his arrest Jan. 13 when a Delta Airlines jet landed in Miami. A presentence investigation was ordered.

Authorities said McPecker shoved an unloaded shotgun in front of the stewardess shortly before the plane completed its flight to Miami from Detroit, and told her to have the plane diverted to Cuba. The captain disregarded the order and landed in Miami without incident.

The U.S. Attorney's office said Monday the piracy charge will be dropped when McPecker is sentenced. He faces a maximum sentence of life imprisonment on the interference charge. A conviction for piracy can bring the death penalty.

Lowe Elected President Of Outdoor Writers

Kenneth S. Lowe, editor of the Marquette Mining Journal, was elected president of the Michigan Outdoor Writers Association (MOWA) at a breakfast meeting of the board Sunday morning.

The MOWA's celebrated their 25th birthday during a convention at Blaney Park June 5-9. George Pfeiffer, "Lonesome George" of WJR radio fame in Detroit, was elected vice president of the Association.

Charles F. Welch of Roscommon was reelected secretary and John Calkins, East Lansing, reelected treasurer.

Retiring president of the Association is Robert S. Marshall, Ogemaw County Herald, West Branch. Marshall was the winner of a 12-foot aluminum boat donated by Watson's Marina of Curtis. Several prizes, donated by area businessmen, were awarded during the four-day convention.

Dr. Ray Johnson, Department of Interior, Washington, D.C., addressed the convention following their Saturday night banquet.

Johnson, who was official representative for Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickell, is an expert on pesticides in their relationship to sport fishing and spoke on this topic.

A group of the conventioners were guests of the Top O' Lake Chamber of Commerce at a cocktail hour and luncheon Saturday noon at the Surf. Chamber members acted as official hosts for the MOWA's who spent the afternoon fishing and touring the scenic attractions of the area.

Cake Cutting

Frank S. Hoholik, president of the Manistique Pulp and Paper Company, hosted the convention at a cocktail hour preceding the seven o'clock Saturday dinner.

Outgoing president Robert S. Marshall of West Branch was toastmaster for the Saturday banquet. Commemorative cups were awarded long-time members Don Gillies, formerly with the Detroit Times; Jack Van-

AMA Fighting Appointment

Dr. Knowles Wants Top Health Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials, probing for ways out of one of their thorniest political problems, reportedly suggested to Dr. John H. Knowles that he take some other high position besides that of the nation's top health officer.

Knowles, according to one report, turned the idea down flat. A request for official comment from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare went unanswered. Knowles could not be reached for comment.

Knowles, 42-year-old director of Boston's Massachusetts General Hospital, is HEW Secretary Robert H. Finch's choice to become assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs.

But he is opposed by powerful elements in the American Medical Association and Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen has said he would fight the AMA's battle to block confirmation.

He Likes Heat

The post is one of the last top-level policy positions still vacant in the administration.

White House officials have said President Nixon is leaving the decision whether to take on Dirksen and the AMA entirely up to Finch, a somewhat unusual delegation of political responsibility.

The administration is confident it could win confirmation of Knowles, who is fond of saying "I like heat."

But the problem is whether the administration can win without the kind of fight that not only might impair Knowles' effectiveness as the government's spokesman in health matters but might also cost it friends needed for obtaining major programs.

Finch and his aides have said repeatedly in the past three months that a decision in the Knowles affair was imminent.

AMA Representative

Unless there is some announcement in the next day or so action may be put off still another two weeks because Finch is taking a vacation.

One development that could have some bearing on the nomination occurred last week when Dr. Edward R. Annis said he would not seek re-election to the AMA board of trustees when his term expires next month.

He denies opposing Knowles. But he says he has been pushing several candidates of his own and they "do not include Dr. Knowles."

The AMA's public position is pretty much that of Dr. Annis—that it has proposed its own candidates and wants somebody who represents the broadest area in the health field.

Knowles is considered by some to be hospital oriented. The AMA also reportedly opposes him because he has never been active in organized medicine. He also has taken positions which have varied somewhat from AMA policy, including statements that full health care is a birth right for all Americans whether they can afford it or not.

The First Step?

President Nixon is taking a carefully planned course in ordering the withdrawal of 25,000 troops from Vietnam.

The United States, according to Pentagon figures, has 538,500 men in the conflict and the "redeployment" of the 25,000 men coupled with President Thieu's assurances at Midway that the South Vietnamese are ready to carry more of the war load will not materially affect the combat or defense capabilities of Allied forces.

On the other hand, the withdrawal of any United States forces — and the president said that other withdrawals could follow — indicates that Nixon has elected to press his announced intention of achieving a mutual withdrawal of U. S. and North Vietnamese forces from the war.

Back in March, Nixon's Secretary of State William P. Rogers told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the Nixon administration "is not seeking a military victory, nor do we want military escalation."

"In support of this policy of peace, we are seeking to achieve agreement with North Vietnam on mutual withdrawal of forces," he said. "We are prepared to begin withdrawal of our forces simultaneously with those of North Vietnam."

As yet, there has been no announcement by Hanoi to pull back any of its troops, but none is expected as North Vietnam still continues to deny the existence of its Army in the south. Nevertheless, the optimistic view is that the order by Nixon could provide the spark to trigger some sort of progress toward ending the conflict.

There is no promise, of course, that the removal of 25,000 American young men will have any impact whatsoever on the course of the war and Sen. Eugene McCarthy, the chief Democratic critic of the Johnson war policy which was not unlike the Nixon policy, says he doesn't see "any significant indication of any program to try and resolve or end the war."

But in a stalemate such as Vietnam there must be a beginning somewhere.

Even if all the action by the president does is to remove 25,000 young men from the immediate danger of losing their lives in the Vietnamese jungles it is worthwhile.

The war must be ended and any step in that direction, however small, should be applauded.

The Family Lawyer

Fighting City Hall
To the elderly Baldwins came distressing news: after 27 years, the city was going to change their house number. The explanation, that it was because of a street widening, did not mollify them at all. Finally they took the matter to court.

"It's not just a question of sentiment," they contended. "Such a change would also be a serious inconvenience, an invasion of our property rights. If they must take away our number, let them at least pay us compensation — just as if they were taking away part of our frontage."

But the court decided it could do nothing for the Baldwins. Even if the change was irksome, said the court, it was still within the proper scope of a city's discretion.

Fighting city hall through court action is not easy. Generally speaking, because of the doctrine of separation of powers, courts do not have a right to "second guess" city officials in the way they run the community.

Accordingly to the city, if acting within its lawfully granted authority, may deprive you of advantages even more valuable than your house number. For example:

In another case, a home owner insisted that he had a right to park on the street in front of his own driveway. He said that was none of the city's business, since, by blocking the driveway, he would be blocking only himself.

But again, a court said the city had a right to forbid all such parking without making exceptions — in order to give equal treatment to all members of the motoring public.

Still, you are entitled to a court's help against the city if the city takes what the law calls "arbitrary" action. Consider this case:

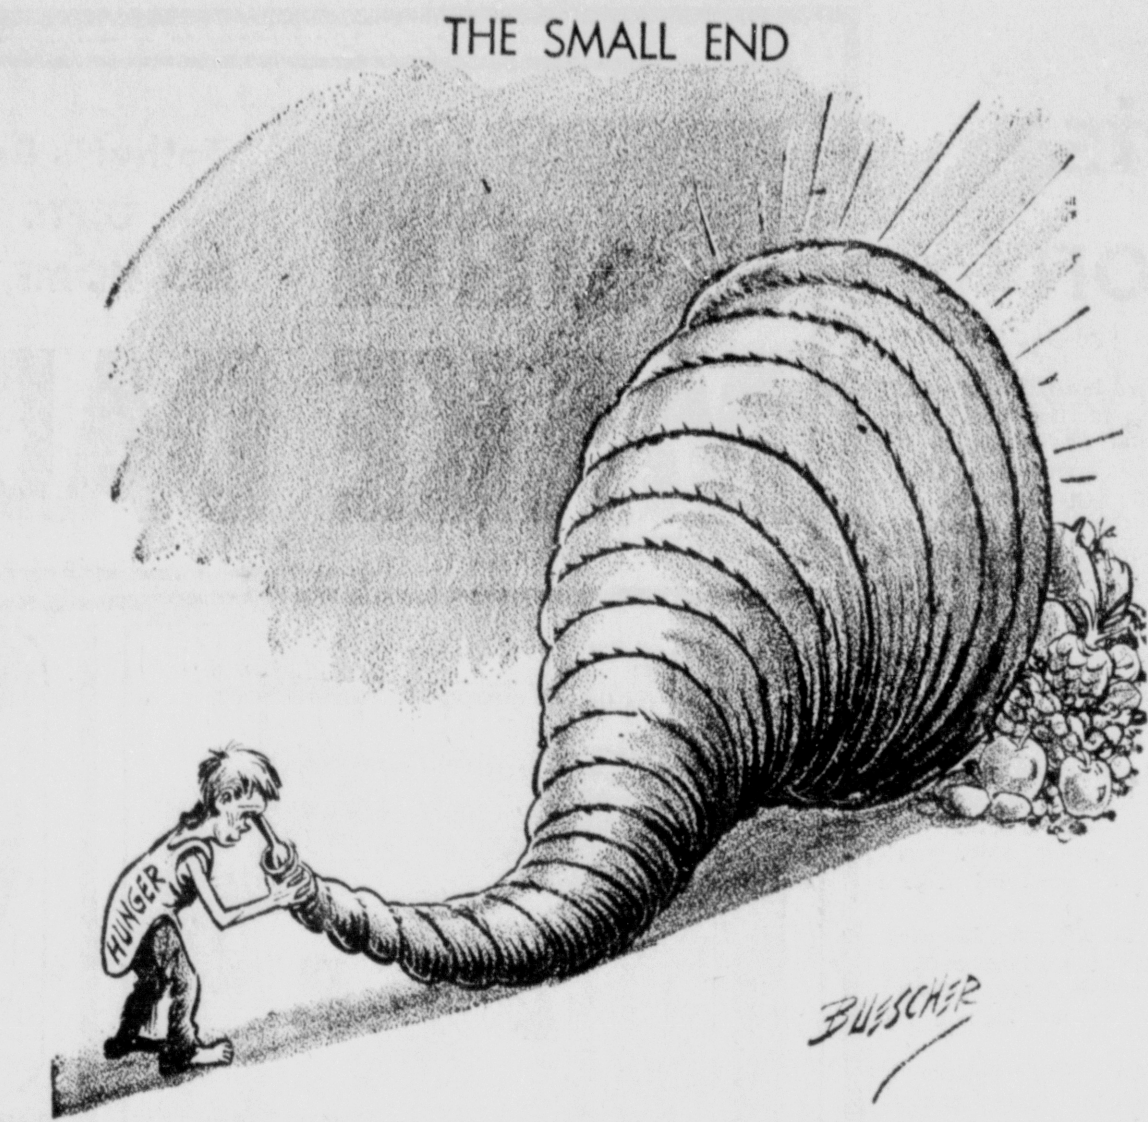

A city ordinance banned all back yard fences more than three-and-one-half feet high. This time a disgruntled home owner, determined to have a higher fence, won a court fight to knock out the ordinance.

Unable to find any rhyme or reason in such a drastic limitation, the court ruled that the city's ban was simply too arbitrary to pass the test of constitutionality.

Michigan's Supreme Court has ordered the Ontonagon County Circuit Court to conduct an additional hearing into the manslaughter conviction of Gale M. Doverspike, who was recently paroled after being sentenced to prison in Sept., 1964 for the shotgun death of Norman Colclasure in Oct., 1963. The order affirms a ruling by the Court of Appeals that the case be returned to Circuit Court for an evidentiary hearing on whether statements made by the defendant immediately following his arrest were voluntary. Circuit Judge Donald L. Munro, who in 1964 prosecuted the case as prosecuting attorney, has disqualified himself because of his prior involvement and is expected to ask the State to assign another judge to hear the case.

At a publication dinner held in Suomi College, coinciding with the release of a new book, "The Finns in North America, a Social Symposium," contributors to the volume, the editor, publisher and State Rep. Russell Hellman (D-Dollar Bay) were honored. The 225-page volume has the works of 15 Americans and Finnish researchers and writers on the history, emigration, community, culture, religious life and ethnic characteristics of Finns.

New York's Lindsay Misses Nixon Pitch

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York City recently made a pilgrimage to Washington to plead his case before a House of Representatives Appropriations subcommittee for more housing money. But there was considerably more on the Mayor's mind than the business of making a pitch for housing funds.

The word had gone out, from some of the pro-Lindsay liberal Republicans who have access to the White House, that he might very possibly expect to be photographed arm-in-arm with President Nixon, with some good words being said about the advisability of keeping Republican control of New York City. With Lindsay running for a repeat Republican endorsement for Mayor in the primary scheduled for June 17, any commendation from Nixon would amount to a Presidential blessing.

At one point just previous to the Lindsay Washington visit three important Republicans—Donald Rumsfeld of the Office of Economic Opportunity, Rogers Morton of the Republican National Committee, and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Bob Finch—put out the word that they had the whole thing lined up.

Lindsay, who had been telling people that Nixon owed him something, convinced himself as he had hoped. He had been the one to nominate Spiro Agnew for the Vice Presidency at the Republicans' Miami Beach convention, which, in his own estimation, made up a bit for his 1965 refusal to flaunt the Republican label when he was running for the New York mayor's job the first time.

The day of May 23 came and went, however, and John Lindsay returned to New York an unhappy man. Nixon had conspicuously avoided any mention of the New York City primary.

What had happened to the "fix" that was supposedly in? This had happened: the forces behind New York City Republican John Marchi's candidacy had gotten wind of the move to obtain a White House blessing for a second Lindsay term. Knowing that Nixon was well aware of Lindsay's sagging popularity with the New York electorate, the supporters of the conservatively oriented Marchi, an honored member of the State Senate, moved quickly to persuade Nixon to maintain his silence on Lindsay.

They framed a strong telegram, which went to Everett Dirksen in the U.S. Senate, to Jerry Ford in the House of Representatives, to Rogers Morton as head of the Republican National Committee, and to Nixon himself. The telegram respectfully called to mind the traditional Nixon practice of remaining neutral in local primary campaigns.

The signatories to the telegram reflected Marchi's solid party strength: Republican County Chairmen in Richmond Borough and the Bronx, the Republican Borough President of Richmond (after Lindsay), the Number Two Republican in the city, the Republican leader of City Council (the Number Three man in the GOP), and practically every elected Republican official holder in Brooklyn, the Bronx, Queens and Richmond. Two freshman legislators from Lindsay's own borough of Manhattan desisted, one because he is in Lindsay's corner, the other because he is neutral.

President Nixon and his key advisers were duly impressed by the depth of Republican sentiment for John Marchi in the New York City area. The word was passed: no pictures, no statements, no leaks. While John Lindsay conferred distractedly with urban affairs people in Washington, he waited in vain for the Presidential summons. Richard Nixon never said a mumblin' word.

It seems likely that the Lindsay forces were doing more than a little wishful thinking in predicting Presidential intervention. Lindsay is in trouble with the voters and needs outside help — a sharp contrast with his 1965 campaign when he turned away such prominent Republican campaigners as Dwight Eisenhower and Nelson Rockefeller.

Letters To The Press

RUPPE REPORTS

This month in Sault Ste. Marie the nation's attention will be focused on the 10th Anniversary celebration of the St. Lawrence Seaway. This is a good time for us to reflect upon how we can strengthen and develop this vital link in the nation's commerce.

A major hindrance to economic progress is the toll which must be paid by vessels using this great canal, which is the only waterway in North America which is not toll free. When American-Canadian toll discussions begin within the next two years, our attention should be focused on how to totally remove the tolls.

Recently, Herbert Doan, who is the General Chairman of the Governors' Committee, Tenth Anniversary, St. Lawrence Seaway, addressed the Economic Club of Detroit. Doan asked in that speech that: 1. Efforts be made to lengthen the Seaway season beyond the present eight months; 2. The United States give "serious thought" to allocating funds to widen and deepen the Seaway; 3. The problem of freight rates discriminatory to the Seaway be resolved; and that, 4. The St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation be permitted to advertise its product, "which is low-cost transportation."

I believe that Doan's suggestions should be supported by action in order to increase the commercial benefits of the vast area served by this important trade route.

SMOG

We are wondering how many people in our community are aware of the source of our smog in the past few weeks. We're sure when we walked into a meeting of the pollution committee last Tuesday that many there were surprised, if not shocked, at the conditions we have been living under recently.

Have you ever had to breathe in tar soot, smoke, and a fine sandlike dust for two weeks? We mean eat, sleep, work, and play in it? And finally, in desperation, leave your home for days on end so you can get a breath of fresh air for your family? Hard to believe, isn't it? Yet, the completion of our airport run-way is so important, that none of our city or county officials could find the time to do anything about the health hazards to some of us residents in the community.

Oh, we're not saying nothing was done at all. When the city manager was called, he referred it to the airport, who in turn talked to the foreman of the construction company. Promises were extracted but not kept.

When the county prosecutor was called we were referred to the city attorney, who of course, was not responsible. When the city engineer was contacted of course it was not his responsibility as the contract was sub-contracted, or something of the sort.

After going through every department we could think of, and wondering what to do next, we heard that a pollution committee had been formed in Escanaba, and was meeting Tuesday night to discuss pollution problems in the county. In desperation we were represented at this meeting and told of our problem.

The committee listened, and of course, advised us to contact people in the channels which we had just gone through. When told this had done no good, we were advised to contact Mr. McKichan who is with the division of occupational health for the State of Michigan.

Opening lead — king of clubs.

You get to some contracts that are theoretically impossible to make, but, if you keep your cool, a surprising number of them will somehow or other come romping home.

Here is a good example of the art of performing the impossible. The hand appears in Dorothy Hayden's very excellent and newest book, "Winning Declarer Play." South arrives at six diamonds on the bidding shown and West leads the king of clubs.

The slam looks hopeless, since there seems to be no way of avoiding two heart losers, but as pointed out by Mrs. Hayden, the picture is not altogether black. Declarer has a reasonable chance to make the contract if he can visualize a not-to-improbable distribution of the opponents' cards.

After winning the club lead with the ace, declarer plays a heart from dummy and puts up the queen after East follows low. West wins with the ace and can, of course, sink the contract by returning a heart at this point. But, lacking X-ray vision, he returns the queen of clubs, hoping that this will be the setting trick.

South ruffs and can no longer be defeated. He plays five rounds of trumps, producing this position:

South

When declarer now cashes his last trump, discarding a club from dummy, East finds he cannot afford to part with either a spade or a heart. Whatever he discards, South comes home with the seemingly impossible slam.

Ann Landers

Knuckle Sandwich For Men On Make

Dear Ann Landers: The Catholic Church had the right idea when they made a rule that priests could never marry. I hope they don't change it. And now I think the American Medical Association should make a rule. Doctors should not be allowed to marry.

I've been the wife of a physician for 30 years and I can vouch for the fact that doctors make the rottenest husbands in the world. Somehow I got the crazy idea that if I married a doctor I'd have someone to look after me if I became ill. What a joke. If a doctor's wife or his children, God forbid, get sick they can die before they get treated. The closest thing I ever got from my doctor-husband in the way of medical attention was this sentence, "Go look in the top drawer of my desk. There's all kinds of stuff in there. Take what you need."

If the children get sick in the middle of the night he doesn't want to call a doctor because he hates to "bother a friend." Our friends and relatives don't seem to mind bothering HIM however.

When I was a dewey-eyed, romantic co-ed I thought it would be wonderful to be married to a professional man. And I STILL do. A lawyer.—G.P.'s Mate

Dear Mate: Your letter should be answered by a doctor's wife and I don't qualify. How about it Girls? Who out there would like to play Ann Landers for a day and respond to this G.P.'s Wife? I'll print the best letter.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a teen-age boy who must disagree with your answer to "Miss Hands Off" — the girl who punched her date in the mouth because he put his hands where they didn't belong. You said a girl doesn't have to give a guy a klop in the chops in order to deliver the message. You suggested instead "a few well-chosen words."

I'm a pretty cool high school senior who has dated all kinds of girls and scored with several. I can tell you from experience that you're wrong. Words don't mean anything to a guy on the make. No matter what a chick says he'll keep trying, and more often than not he'll get what he wants, even after she has said no. A few times in my life I've gotten clubbed. When this happened I knew I was in the presence of a lady and she meant business. So, Ann Landers, don't discourage the little chick who is inclined to paste a guy in the mouth. One wallop is worth a thousand words. — Maimed in Miami

Dear Maimed: Thanks for an interesting point of view from a guy who obviously has had plenty of experience. (Got any teeth left, Buddy?) Your point is well taken however. A great deal depends on the temperament and personality of the Man On the Make. To an insensitive clown words mean nothing. The only language that gets through is the knuckle sandwich. When a chick encounters such a character she should behave accordingly.

Confidential to Yes or No? Yes! It is better to err on the side of compassion. You won't regret this decision and you might well regret the other.

Court Refuses To Open Dodd Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused today to revive Sen. Thomas J. Dodd's $5-million libel and invasion of privacy suit against Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson, Washington newspaper columnists.

Dodd, a Connecticut Democrat, claimed two former and two current employees in 1965 stole and made copies of thousands of documents that were used in Pearson-Anderson columns in 1966. In the series of articles the columnists alleged official misconduct by Dodd.

The court made no comment in rejecting Dodd's appeal from dismissal of his suit by federal courts here.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Detroit led the way as the National Alliance of Businessmen met its first - year goal of 100,000 jobs for disadvantaged workers. While the NAB went a little over their mark with 102,235 nationwide, the NAB program in Detroit hit 400 per cent of its goal of 4,000.

You said a girl doesn't have to give a guy a klop in the chops in order to deliver the message. You suggested instead "a few well-chosen words."

I'm a pretty cool high school senior who has dated all kinds of girls and scored with several. I can tell you from experience that you're wrong. Words don't mean anything to a guy on the make. No matter what a chick says he'll keep trying, and more often than not he'll get what he wants, even after she has said no. A few times in my life I've gotten clubbed. When this happened I knew I was in the presence of a lady and she meant business. So, Ann Landers, don't discourage the little chick who is inclined to paste a guy in the mouth. One wallop is worth a thousand words. — Maimed in Miami

Dear Maimed: Thanks for an interesting point of view from a guy who obviously has had plenty of experience. (Got any teeth left, Buddy?) Your point is well taken however. A great deal depends on the temperament and personality of the Man On the Make. To an insensitive clown words mean nothing. The only language that gets through is the knuckle sandwich. When a chick encounters such a character she should behave accordingly.

Confidential to Yes or No? Yes! It is better to err on the side of compassion. You won't regret this decision and you might well regret the other.

Give in or lose him. . . when a guy gives you this line, look out! For tips on how to handle the super sex salesman, check Ann Landers. Read her booklet, "Necking And Petting—What Are The Limits?" Court Refuses To Open Dodd Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused today to revive Sen. Thomas J. Dodd's $5-million libel and invasion of privacy suit against Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson, Washington newspaper columnists.

Dodd, a Connecticut Democrat, claimed two former and two current employees in 1965 stole and made copies of thousands of documents that were used in Pearson-Anderson columns in 1966. In the series of articles the columnists alleged official misconduct by Dodd.

The court made no comment in rejecting Dodd's appeal from dismissal of his suit by federal courts here.

Business Alliance Tops Jobs Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Detroit led the way as the National Alliance of Businessmen met its first - year goal of 100,000 jobs for disadvantaged workers. While the NAB went a little over their mark with 102,235 nationwide, the NAB program in Detroit hit 400 per cent of its goal of 4,000.

The NAB move is in conjunction with the MA-5 program, Manpower Administration, of the U.S. Department of Labor. Employers are reimbursed by the government for hiring, training and counseling hard-core unemployed.

Hard Work Made C.C. 'Lucky Stiff'

By MEL HEIMER

There is a tendency among C. C. Courtney's casual acquaintances to refer to that big, goodlooking actor as "the lucky stiff," because things seem to have come easily to him and he's never lived a weekend on spaghetti or Shredded Wheat in an attic, starving for his art.

It's a bum rap. Actually, few performers have worked as hard as C. C. has, and still does. He is, of course, the man who plays Jody Lee Bronson on the NBC TV daytime serial, "The Doctors," but even more, he is a writer, producer, singer and lyricist, and he keeps busy at all of them.

A native of New Orleans, C. C. (for Charles Cane) was working as a disk jockey in his home town for something like $500 a week, when, pretty suddenly, he decided to shake that neighborhood in favor of New York. "I felt that if I could make it locally," he says, "why not try nationally?" What he did was his himself north and enroll at the Neighborhood Playhouse, a proving ground for many a good actor, and there he studied more than nine hours a day for two years. When he was graduated, in June '68, he popped immediately into the featured role on the NBC serial—giving rise to the "lucky stiff" comments, of course.

Of course, C. C. was a cut above average in making that big jump, since it's been estimated that 95 per cent of all young acting hopefuls, even AFTER being graduated from a drama school, need at least one or two years of odd jobs—hotel clerk, elevator operator, waiter, or the classic one, necktie salesman in Macy's—before finding work.

Fresh from his long, hard days at the Playhouse, Courtney found that working in "The Doctors" was as tough, if not tougher. Those stories about daytime serial acting being easy are just that—stories.

"Actually, it's the opposite," C. C. says, "and I like working in this show for just that reason. The rigorous schedule is great discipline for a young actor. The rehearsals start at 8 a. m. and go until 3 p. m.

when the taping is completed. And if I have a show the next day, I rehearse for that one until 5:30."

At 25, Courtney has a strong drive for success, which he says, means to him "that you have more freedom to do what you want." For instance, he came up with the idea for, and then wrote, produced and starred in "Salvation," an off-Broadway production that he calls "a new rock concept." His partner in Big Sandy Co., Pete Link, directed the show and the critics like it.

It's a unique offering, beginning at 1:30 p. m. and being just about the only place around Manhattan offering that kind of entertainment at that time. Four of its cast members are in Broadway shows—two in "Hair" and one each in "Fiddler" and "Dolly"—and the musicians involved, who play 20 different instruments, also perform as actors (four of the five are about to be graduated from the Juilliard School of Music).

"And," Courtney says with a smile, "the tickets only cost three dollars, which is pretty rare these days." One report is that Broadway producer David Black is interested in "Salvation" and may bring it uptown, while a record company has bid for the cast album.

C. C. meanwhile has written a play, "Hardly Anybody Lives in Murphy's Canyon," scheduled for off-Broadway production in the near future—and he's looking around for some other things to do in his spare time. The lucky stiff, it seems, makes his own luck.

Inflated Egos Can Initiate Trouble

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Every man should try to have a good opinion of himself—but not so high a one that it startles his neighbors.

Inflated egos among individuals cause trouble at home, and among nations they cause wars abroad.

But it is so difficult today, beset as our life is with unsolved complexities, to keep our self-esteem that it would seem all but impossible for anyone to get delusions of superiority. There are too many possible circumstances waiting to ambush our vanity.

Here, for example, are a few things that tend to keep our heads the same size as our hats and teach us humility: The high cost of living.

Algiers Trial Goes To Jury

MASON, Mich. (AP)—An all-white jury begins deliberations today in the "Algiers Motel Murder Trial" of a suspended white policeman accused in the death of a Negro youth during Detroit's 1967 racial riot.

Circuit Judge William Beer told the jurors Monday they will be limited to two choices in their verdict: a first-degree murder conviction or acquittal, with no intermediate alternatives.

Under Michigan law, first-degree murder calls for a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment without parole.

The ruling came after Beer denied for a second time, a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal.

On trial is Ronald August, 30, charged with murdering 19-year-old Aubrey Pollard at the Algiers Motel on the night of July 26, 1967.

Avery Weisswasser, assistant Wayne County prosecutor, told the jury it was sitting in judgment of a policeman who took the law into his own hands.

He said a lot of things happened at the Algiers Motel that haven't been explained because there were many police, soldiers and guardsmen who have not come forward to admit they were on the scene.

In his rebuttal, Weisswasser theorized that August and two fellow policemen—David Senak and Robert Paille — were responsible for all three deaths. Defense Attorney Norman Lippitt said the prosecution had failed to establish that August was guilty of murder "beyond a reasonable doubt" and that the killing of Pollard resulted from malice and premeditation.

Lippitt said many prosecution witnesses lacked credibility and had made "completely inconsistent" and malicious statements in their eagerness to see August convicted.

Nelson Alarmed At DDT Count

WASHINGTON (AP) — Results of a national study of pesticides in fish show evidence of a pending environmental disaster, Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said Monday.

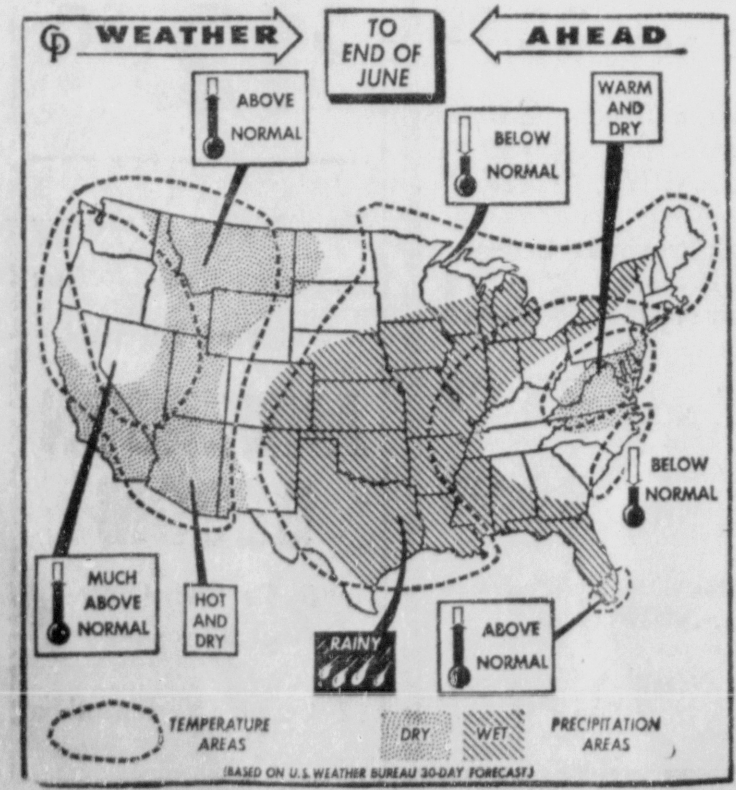

Nelson said the study by the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife showed DDT ranged up to 45.27 parts per million—twice the level of salmon caught in Lake Michigan recently and seized by the Food and Drug Administration as unfit for human consumption.

"These accumulations are a threat to the future of our fish and wildlife and have ominous implications for the health of man," Nelson told the Senate.

He said the two-year study disclosed DDT in 584 of the 590 samples of fish taken from 45 rivers and lakes across the United States.

UAW Backs Fight Against Pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United Auto Workers executive Monday asked Congress to spend $1 billion to fight water pollution. Olga Madar, director of the union's Natural Resources Dept., told a senate subcommittee there was no more urgent problem for the country than water pollution.

Farmers Report Planting Slow

LANSING (AP) — Michigan farmers, delayed by continuing rains, report their planting progress is the slowest in recent years.

The state crop reporting service said only an average of two days were suitable for field work last week.

Working conditions in the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula were slightly better than for the remainder of the state.

A few Upper Peninsula areas reported a soil moisture shortage.

Moisture was surplus to adequate in the remainder of the state.

Corn planting was about 80 per cent complete. Many growers were not putting in all their intended acreage. Others switched to varieties with a short growing season.

Potato planting had reached the three-quarter mark, about one week behind progress at the same time a year ago. Soybean plantings, at 40 per cent complete, also were a week behind schedule.

The first cuttings of May were hampered by rains and only five per cent complete. About one-quarter of the wheat crop was headed, close to the normal schedule.

The strawberry harvest reached volume proportions in the southwest. Some berries were damaged by frost in the Upper Peninsula.

Sen. Griffin Votes For Burger

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Senator Robert Griffin, R-Mich., joined the majority in the Senate's overwhelming 74-3 approval of Warren E. Burger to be Chief Justice of the United States. Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., did not vote.

The only three to vote against Burger were Sens. Eugene Mc-Carthy, D-Minn., Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., and Stephen Young, D-Ohio.

Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, and George S. McGovern, D-S.D., all voted with the majority.

Bicycle Law Proposals Rejected By Commission

Proposed changes in the bicycle ordinance were rejected by the City Commission Monday night after a heated discussion during the public hearing on the proposals.

Representatives of the Bicycle Safety committee, who proposed to change the ordinance to permit young children to legally ride bicycles on sidewalks and to prohibit all bicycles on Delta Ave. from 8th to 10th Streets, accepted the commission's suggestion to submit another proposal drafted with the assistance of the city attorney.

The Commission was firm in its belief that the existing ordinance has been a good one and that small children always have been permitted to ride bicycles on sidewalks. They said that permitting all children to ride on sidewalks could prove to be a hazard for pedestrians.

To Rework Proposals

The Commission also said it is the responsibility of parents to teach children to operate bicycles safely and to forbid them to ride if safety is not practiced.

Chief of Police James Norick said the Gladstone Police Dept. would enforce whatever ordinance was adopted and that he already has issued warnings to cyclists who were careless in riding. He said he confiscated 14 bicycles when warnings were not heeded.

Mrs. Samuel Hoyt and Mrs. Chester Badach, members of the Bicycle Safety Committee, expressed displeasure at the Commission's failure to understand the legality problem of children riding on the sidewalk when it is specifically forbidden by the existing ordinance.

They agreed, however, to attempt to work out another proposal with the assistance of the city attorney.

Hearing no objections to designating the alley between Delta and Minnesota Ave. in the 800 block as one-way traffic to permit drive-in banking facilities at the First National Bank, the commission authorized that it be so designated, effective when necessary.

In other business, the Commission deferred action on the accounts of former Justice of the Peace Edward Goldsworthy was deferred; referred the comprehensive plan as submitted by Williams & Works to the Planning Commission; referred the zoning ordinance and subdivision regulations to the city attorney; placed the paving of S. 12th St. on the work program; authorized payment of $25,521 to contractors for work completed on the water filtration plant; deferred purchase of a police patrol car until 1970 models are available; refunded retirement fees paid to Walter Clausen, who has terminated his employment with the city, and authorized bids for storm sewer construction on N. 9th St.

Lease Requested

City Manager H. J. Hennrikson read a letter from Robert Dagenas of Escanaba, who recently purchased the property adjacent to Larry's Foodland from Swenson Brothers Furniture, Inc., to permit breaking of curb for an entrance to the parking lot in that area. Hennrikson said the outlet for traffic would be on the alley so cars would not be entering Delta Ave. The Planning Commission for study.

George Matt, 1323 Minnesota Ave., proprietor of the Gladstone Marine Co., asked to lease land in the industrial park behind the Marble Arms Corp. to build a marine site. Matt proposes to build a 36-foot by 24-foot structure and to sell boats, motors, trailers and eventually to build his own boats for sale.

He was asked to draw specific plans in order that the city might plan for extended water mains and sewers to service the site.

Bills Still Due

Reginald Curtis, 1219 Minnesota Ave., and Commissioner George Young, 403 S. 17th St., asked the commission to cancel water main assessments on their homes which were built by a contractor. The men said they paid the contractor for the assessments, but the contractor left the city before making payment to the city.

Curtis and Young were told the bills are still unpaid and are still collectible. The city will request a traffic study be made by the Highway Dept. in order to control the speed on the highway (U.S. 2 and 41) through Gladstone. Escanaba has a 35 mph limit through the city and attempts to control the speed in Gladstone will be made.

Keith Apeltgren In Science Seminar

Keith Apeltgren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Apeltgren, 807 Minnesota Ave., has been selected to attend the summer institute seminar at U.C.L.A. Keith will be a participant in the Space Biology program which begins on July 28 and continues through August 29. He is a pre-med student at Michigan Technological University and will be a senior the following term.

Gains Reported By Cooperative

The 1969 annual meeting of the members of the Alger-Delta Cooperative Electric Association will be held Wednesday, June 18, at the Gladstone High School Gymnasium at 12:30 p.m.

"The aim of the Alger-Delta Cooperative Electric Association is to make electric service available to its members at the lowest cost consistent with sound economy and good management," said Cooperative's President, Raymond Berger in the 1968 Annual Report.

During the past year, 17 miles of new line was built, and service was made available to 170 new consumers of which 59 were full-time users and 111 were seasonal consumers. These figures were reported by Wynand Nieuwenkamp, Manager of the Cooperative.

A heavy-duty service truck and increased line crew personnel have been added, "to keep the power lines in the best possible condition," said Englund.

Line Superintendent, Edwin Englund, reported that as a part of the preventative maintenance program during 1968, crews inspected 1,436 poles, most of which had been in service for 30 years. With these inspections, the cooperative is able to replace the defective poles as part of a planned effort than under emergency conditions, he said.

Several service lines have been upgraded and larger transformers have been installed due to the increased utilization of the service for electric cooking and water heating with several new electric heating consumers.

The people employed by the Cooperative worked 43,016 man-hours and the trucks and cars were driven 181,499 miles. All of this was done without a disabling injury or highway accident.

Wine Tasters Sample 'Golden Age'

By RODNEY ANGOVE

PARIS (AP)—Some people go all glassy-eyed when asked about the finest wine they ever tasted.

Such was the case at a recent tasting session for rare old wines, at the Paris branch of Christie's, the London auction house.

"They are the Clarets of 1858-74," said Richard Walter, a young, bearded Christie's man. "That was their golden age. Everything conspired to make them, well you cannot call them immortal, but certainly the finest of any living memory."

"When you sip one, it is like . . ." His voice trailed off and his gaze fixed afar.

"Do you know that statue of Balzac up in Montmartre? The one in which he's wearing a great heavy cloak? Well, when you taste those wines, something of the past comes through the veil, just like the great cloaked figure of Balzac looming through the evening mists." Then wine expert Walter, like a rank amateur, pushed the cork into a dust-covered bottle of 1935 Richebourg, all but ruining it.

Impressions

Walter, his soporific daydream and his moment of inebriation, characterizes the vintage wine business. Because if there were any over-all impressions to be gained from that tasting session, they were these:

1—Taste is largely a question of imagination, and is a highly individual matter. Some people have cultivated their tastes and some have not. But even the professionals differ on how taste should be translated into dollars and cents. And the rarest and oldest are never automatically the best.

2—The vintage wine people make mistakes like everyone else. Vintages are sometimes allowed to age right on past their peak and grow worse, perhaps by 10 or 20 years. Some are rediscovered and sold after being forgotten for years in obscure cellars.

Not All Wines Age

To help American wine buyers, who are increasing foreign purchases 15 per cent a year, Christie's certified winetaster, Michael Broadbent, explained that not all wines are vintage wines, the ones which improve with age of 10, 20 or 50 years. The majority, in fact, are for current consumption—no matter how good—and risk turning bad in a very few years.

Surprisingly, the winemaker knows when he has the makings of a vintage wine on his hands. He judges it by pedigree, soil, moisture, sunshine.

The combination was good "across the board in 1966 for Burgundies and Bordeaux," said Alexander McNally, an American importer.

The winemaker's skill includes the addition of sugar to start the formation of natural sugars. Broadbent tasted one aged Claret with an overdose of sugar and commented, "Your teeth might fall out if you keep on drinking that."

The blends of various wines must be exact—yes, said McNally, they are blended, although only the dominating variety is listed on the label.

The winemaker watches closely during two years in barrels. He picks his "laying down" wines—alcohol is important because it is the preservative—and uses the highest possible quality corks, storing the bottles tilted to keep the corks moist.

Cork Is Checked

A good winemaker, said Broadbent, won't go back for another taste for 10 years. But the corks are constantly inspected because the slightest oxygen is murder. French negotiator Raoul Johnston said oxygen will spoil the bouquet of some wines within a half hour after opening, especially if in small bottles where they mature faster.

Corks are often replaced in 20 to 50 years, but the bottles are not "topped up." Broadbent said the evaporation is imperceptible in 50 years.

Another cork danger is a tiny worm that drops cork dust into the wine, giving it a cork taste.

Bottle-aging means sediment at the bottom and tannin throughout. Broadbent judges maturity by the light brown rim of tannin as he swirls the glass.

Average Cupfull

"A bit astringent," he said of a 20-year-old Romance-Saint-

Vivant with a prominent tannin rim. "It was probably better 15 years ago."

If joggled, the sediment should settle a long, long time. McNally said that wines shaken up into a foam will regain nearly all their original taste with sufficient resettling.

One last word of advice: A winetasting of old vintages is a poor place for heavy drinking. After two full hours of tasting by 30 persons, the 20 bottles were missing only a cupfull on the average.

Blacks Occupy Detroit Church

DETROIT (AP)—As a group of blacks continued their occupation of an inner city church, Presbyterian officials in Detroit Monday reaffirmed their decision not to yield to militant demands under force or threat of force.

The National Black Economic Development Conference (NBEDC), headed by James Forman, is demanding that the Detroit Presbytery turn Redeemer Presbyterian Church over to them for use as a national headquarters.

Meanwhile, a group of about a dozen white members of People Against Racism continued a sit-in at Synod offices to back the NBEDC demands.

"While we will not respond to a threat, we recognize the legitimate needs of the black community and the exhibition of injustice within a society of which we are a part," said the Rev. Ralph C. Stribe, chairman of the executive committee of the Michigan Synod.

The executive committees of both the Synod and the Detroit Presbytery are scheduled to meet Tuesday to discuss the situation. Under Presbyterian law, all churches are the property of the local presbytery.

Heart Seminar

"Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR), The Emergency Treatment of Heart Stoppage and Sudden Death," a seminar, will be offered cooperatively to all Upper Peninsula hospitals by the Michigan Heart Association and the Munising Memorial Hospital, at the hospital on Sand Point Rd., Munising, at 1 p.m. Thursday. Nurses and orderlies—especially those who work in emergency and admitting rooms or near heart attack patients—are also invited. The public will not be admitted.

4-H Youth Week

EAST LANSING (AP)—The accent will be on youth as more than 1,000 youth and adult leaders meet on the Michigan State University campus for the 51st annual 4-H Youth Week.

Theme of the meeting, to continue through Saturday is "The World Needs Youth."

The delegates represent nearly 100,000 participants in Michigan's 4-H club programs.

Speakers will include former Miss America Marilyn Van DeBur, folk singer Joe Wise, Dale Robinson of the National Education Association and Dr. Leroy Augenstein, member of the State Board of Education.

The old Erie Canal was widened or improved and in some places relocated beginning in 1903.

Podiatrist Testifies On Treating Derelicts

DEROIT (AP) — A young Detroit podiatrist told five state legislators Monday of taking night trips to inner city flop houses to lure derelicts to a hospital where they were used by inexperienced doctors for surgical training courses.

Dr. David Touchton, a former intern at the downtown hospital, Civic General, said drunken men were taken there and given "unnecessary and major surgery with hours without adequate preparation and with sometimes tragic results."

The House committee, set up specifically to investigate Touchton's charges, was also told that one derelict who had signed a complaint against the hospital had disappeared while another is now under protective custody after being severely beaten by "two men in suits."

"If these things are true, this is a critical situation that may demand new legislation," committee chairman Rep. Matthew McNeely, D-Detroit, said. "This sort of thing has got to be cleared up."

"This story is just plain shocking, horrific," he said.

During the course of the hearing, McNeely and several other committee members clashed with Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Jay Nolan for his failure to complete an investigation his office began into the charges some time ago.

Nolan answered that, at the time, "It just didn't seem to us that any criminal action was involved."

Nolan admitted his office never saw hospital records or held any personal interviews.

Touchton also gave the committee a list of patients who had been used in the courses more than once.

At the close of the meeting, McNeely vowed to search deeper into the charges to find out what has been going on.

Milwaukee Priest Officiates At Priest's Wedding

EAST LANSING (AP) — A Wisconsin priest now on leave of absence may face disciplinary action for officiating at the marriage of a priest.

The Rev. Kenneth L. Faiver was married Saturday to Rosemary Sargeant of East Lansing at the Michigan State University Alumni Memorial Chapel. The couple was married by the Rev. Robert Van Susteren of Milwaukee. He now is working at a Milwaukee social agency.

The Milwaukee Roman Catholic chancery said Monday it would have to evaluate any report of the marriage sacrament being given to a member of the priesthood. A spokesman indicated no immediate report had been received.

The Rev. James A. Murray, chancellor of the Lansing Diocese said under canon law any local priest performing the ceremony would have been suspended "for a period of time to be determined by the bishop." Canon law denies the marriage sacrament to priests, and any who solemnize it do so illegally, Father Murray said.

The Rev. Faiver was dismissed from his Lansing post after he appealed to the Most Rev. Alexander Zaleski, Lansing bishop, for support in a bid to marry and stay in the priesthood.

Faiver since has worked at the Lansing Fisher Body Co. plant.

Discuss DDT At Sault Meet

LANSING (AP) — Area residents have been invited to attend the informal meeting of the State Agriculture Commission June 17 at Crawford Hall Auditorium, Lake Superior College, Sault Ste. Marie.

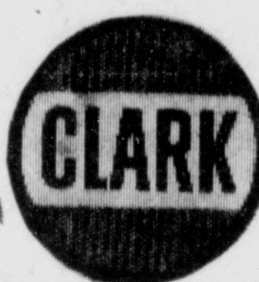

The commission traditionally holds one meeting a year in the Upper Peninsula during the summer months.

The formal meeting June 18 mainly will be devoted to a public hearing on appeals from four firms from the commission decision to cancel all DDT sales in the state.

The commission announced plans to cancel DDT sales in the state following findings of concentrations of the pesticide in Great Lakes salmon and other fish. The commission also noted that safer and less persistent chemicals now are on the market.

Business Suppresses Thief Information

NEW YORK (AP)—Although business is the immediate loser in what appears to be a growing incidence of theft, it hasn't always been the first to complain publicly. And for this, it has incurred considerable criticism.

Speaking recently to a House committee on the affairs of small business, a University of Michigan scientist, Albert J. Reiss Jr., estimated that pilferage cost American business $3 billion in 1967-1968.

At Kennedy Airport here, the Airport Security Council, made up of airlines and freight forwarders, complained this week that $100,000 in watches have been stolen this year. The year's total of all thefts at the airport might exceed $2 million. It did last year.

Stolen Securities

In Wall Street it appears that millions of dollars of securities have been stolen in the past year. But in one of the latest cases of fraud there, the company withheld information from the police.

Cargo thefts from truckers are reliably estimated by industry sources to total nearly $1 billion a year, but surprisingly little public concern is expressed about such tremendous losses.

Now that the size and impact of such losses are becoming better known, it isn't necessarily because business has changed its attitude and is publicizing the problem.

"It is amazing that law enforcement has been able to do what it has done, despite the lack of cooperation of business and labor," a Manhattan assistant district attorney told business executives recently.

Why the reticence? In Wall Street, at least, some brokers are said to feel that it is better to cover up rather than reveal securities thefts, the reasoning being that any loss might lessen the public's confidence.

Accept As Cost

In some industries, it has been hinted, it might be considered advisable to cooperate with criminal elements, the rewards being easy labor contracts, underworld loans and even stolen merchandise.

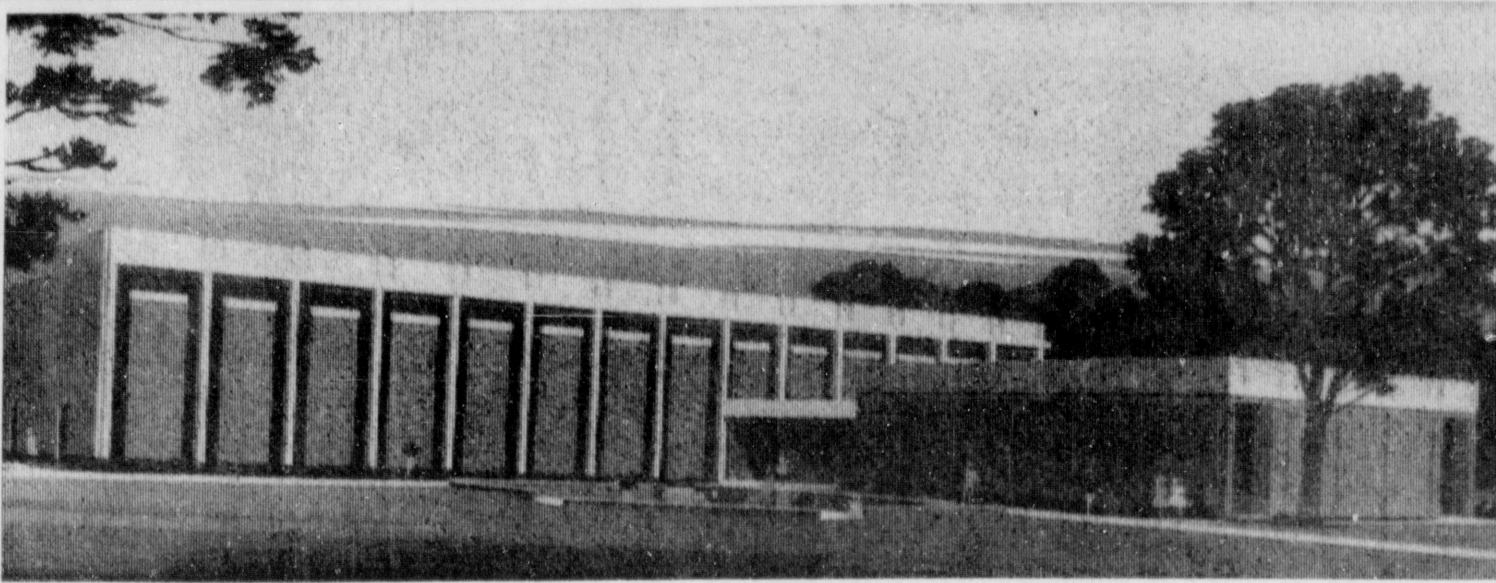

In many industries an attitude seems to prevail that crime is something bigger than the ability of any one company to contend with and therefore should be accepted as a cost of doing business.

This attitude results in business spending millions of dollars on security and in maintaining police forces. But much less is spent to get at the root of the problem—to prevent rather than protect.

Who pays the extra cost? In many instances the customer does—hundreds of millions of dollars a year in price increases and security costs, according to H. Bruce Palmer, head of the National Industrial Conference Board.

LARGE LOSS

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—Antique snuff boxes worth more than Rands 40,000 ($56,000) disappeared when a thief broke into Mrs. L. Whitman's suburban Pinetown home. Some of the 68 snuff boxes in the collection were more than 500 years old.

GROUND BREAKING CEREMONIES for Lake Superior State College's new $2.2 million dollar library classroom building were held Monday at 11 a. m. State Sen. Thomas F. Schweigert and Rep. Charles R. Varnum, and officials of Ralph Calder and Associates, Inc., architects of the building and Champion Construction Company, Inc. of Iron Mountain, general contractors, took part in the ceremony. Construction of the building is scheduled to start immediately. Completion is planned for Sept., 1970.

Public To Vote On Issue

No Opposition To Housing Bond Bill

LANSING (AP)—A bill to allow voters to decide on a proposed $100 million bond issue for low cost housing and slum clearance has eased up to a final passage stage in the Senate with no opposition debate.

Sen. Coleman Young, D - Detroit, sponsor of the measure, admitted he was surprised at the seeming lack of challenge to his proposal.

"Maybe it is because they know it will be decided by the voters," Young suggested.

The Senate was to continue to try and clear its calendar today after working long afternoon and late night hours Monday.

"This is one of the most serious problems in the state," Young said of the proposal. "It is even more important. I think, than the $100 million recreation bond issue."

The recreation bond issue, by contrast, has developed into a hot, major partisan issue.

The slum bond issue will have to pass both houses by a two-thirds vote to be placed on the November, 1970, election ballot.

Urban Redevelopment

Voters would be asked if they approved issuance of the bonds "for the purposes of undertaking urban redevelopment aimed at increasing the supply of decent, safe and sanitary low income housing and eliminating slums and flight, and for the making of grants, loans and advances to municipalities of the state and redevelopment corporations for such purposes...."

The full faith and credit of the state would be behind the general obligation bonds.

Only Sen. Garland Lane, D - Flint, rose to ask a question.

Lane suggested that $100 million in bonds "would be too much to pour on the market in one year."

He said perhaps there should be some provision for arranging for the sale of the bonds over a period of years "so they could do the most good."

A companion bill sponsored by Young to allow local units of government to establish housing authorities with bonding powers for similar purposes also was moved up for final vote.

Several senators had bills to permit dog racing in the state ready to tack on a measure that would set winter dates for horse racing.

Sen. Emil Lockwood, R - St. Louis, Republican majority leader, said it was decided not to attempt the move after it was learned they would not be relevant to the existing bill.

Sen. Harold Hungerford, R - Lansing, succeeded in killing a bill that would have tied salaries of county prosecuting attorneys to the same level of pay as probate or circuit judges. A group of bills aimed at improving election count procedures also were moved up to become eligible for passage.

Election Board

One change would require the use of special boards to count absentee ballots.

Sen. James Gray, D-Warren, said recent recounts showed a number of errors involving the counting of absentee ballots. There were some objections to the cost, but Gray said this would vary from city to city "and would not be a large item."

Other bills moved to final vote stage included ones to: —Increase the renewal license fee for nurses from $3 to $5.

—Increasing the State Board of Barber Examiners membership from three to five.

—Authorize local governments to regulate private parking when requested by the parking area owner.

—Prohibit an employer from discharging a worker because of a garnishment against his wages.

—Allow the release of grand jury records to the Legislature when it is asked to consider the removal of a public official from office.

—Remove the requirement that a person receiving aid to the blind not have solicited alms.

Home Mortgage Ceiling Shaky

LANSING (AP)—Increase of the prime money lending rate from 7½ per cent to 8½ per cent by commercial banks has shaken up legislative efforts to raise the legal, 7 per - cent ceiling on Michigan home mortgages.

Democratic and Republican leaders in the house, where a Senate - approved measure now rests, agreed the action Monday by most banks means a fresh start now must be made to amend Michigan's usury laws.

Senate approval of a 9 per cent ceiling was rejected by the House along with a plan to eliminate any legal limit.

Efforts in the lower chamber to outlaw "points"—one designation for a variety of service charges on mortgages and construction loans remain unsettled.

House Minority Leader Robert Waldron, R-Grosse Pointe, said he couldn't predict immediately what new figure might be adopted.

"It just shows we were right when we said there wasn't any chance of the rate going down," said Waldron.

Asked if the Senate's 9 per cent limit now might be acceptable, Waldron replied, "not if you eliminate points."

House Democrats sought unsuccessfully Monday to put off for a week consideration of the problem, along with a compromise bill offered by Waldron and Rep. Frank Wierzbicki, D-Detroit.

The measure remains in position for immediate action whenever backers believe they have sufficient support for a rate.

"We've agreed there has to be some regulation," Waldron said. "It's just a question now of how much."

Colleges Told To Formulate Own Code Of Conduct

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixteen members of the House Education and Labor Committee are pushing a bill calling for colleges and universities to formulate codes of conduct for their students or face loss of federal aid.

They took their antiriot proposal to the full 35-member committee today, confident of enough support to win approval of the compromise plan.

Introduction of the bill came Monday just as a presidential commission issued a report on campus violence which recommended, among other things, that lawmakers not rush to withdraw financial aid from schools that fail to control disorders.

Clamp Down

The National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence said existing laws already withdraw aid from students who engage in disruptive acts, and "additional laws along the same lines would not accomplish any useful purpose."

Backers of the new House measure are led by Reps. John N. Erlenborn, R-Ill., and Edith Green, an Oregon Democrat who headed a subcommittee that could not reach agreement on any bill to clamp down on schools which fail to control disturbances.

The new bill is described as a compromise between backers of plans to shut off funds to any college which is disrupted by a demonstration and those who oppose any congressional action at all.

It would require universities applying for federal funds to file a certificate showing that—after consultation with administrators, faculty and students—a code of conduct with rules and regulations has been established.

Erlenborn said the goals would be to maintain freedom of expression, public order and the effective functioning of the educational process.

Stop Federal Funds

If an institution did not file such a certificate, it would not be permitted to get any federal funds. Schools are not told how to write the regulations.

The compromise retains Mrs. Green's cutoff of federal funds to students and teachers convicted of rioting, and it extends the cutoff to other federal programs including the veterans educational program.

Requirement that schools draw up regulations apparently would be somewhat in line with the presidential commission recommendation that universities take steps to head off violence.

The commission report contends that schools must make it clear that police will be called on campus to deal with violence. It suggests institutions coordinate plans with civil authorities to control disorders.

SPIVEY'S CORNER, N.C. (AP) — The first National Hollerin' Contest will be held June 28 in this east-central North Carolina community.

Killings Unreal To U-M Senior

ANN ARBOR (AP)—The horror of six murders of young women in the past two years in the Ann Arbor area seemed blunted Monday by the aura of security surrounding the tree-lined University of Michigan campus.

"It's not real," said Judy Sarason, a senior from Briarcliff, N.Y.

"It might stop me tonight from walking home alone," the attractive brunette added. "But I don't know what effect it will have next week."

Like Miss Sarason, many U-M coeds seemed disturbed by the slayings but not so disturbed that they would make major changes in their lives, such as not going out alone at night.

Despite years of warning from house mothers, Ann Arbor coeds have long considered it relatively safe to walk in the campus area unescorted at night.

"There's lots of places in New York where I wouldn't walk at night," said Judy Kahn, a junior from New York City. "But the campus has always seemed safe. The university seems to protect."

Most of the girls, however, said they try to restrict their nighttime rambling to the well-lit campus area. The university has recently installed powerful mercury-vapor lighting on most major campus walkways.

One coed said she now rides a bicycle from her apartment to campus at night rather than walking. The girl, Mary Snyder, a senior from East Lansing, Mich., said that prior to the series of slayings, she had always felt safe on campus.

"I'm much more aware of the danger now," Miss Snyder said. "I try to always let people know where I am."

New Government For S. Vietnam

HONG KONG (AP) — The Viet Cong announced today the formation of a "revolutionary government to rule South Vietnam."

The announcement, over a special midnight broadcast by Radio Hanoi, said the two-part revolutionary government—an administrative ruling unit backed up by a special council of advisers—was formed over the weekend by a special meeting of 88 representatives from every section of South Vietnam.

The Vietnamese-language broadcast said it would be known as the "Republic of South Vietnam Temporary Revolutionary Government"—indicating that it was to last only until a formal Communist-dominated government could be established.

Request Disclosure Of Pentagon's ABM Chart

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opponents of the administration's Safeguard program say a secret Pentagon chart shows the anti-missile system would give only a few months' additional insurance against a Soviet missile attack on U.S. missile bases.

A key factor, they say, is the relatively small number of anti-ballistic missiles—ABMs—planned for the Safeguard system.

The chart, shown to senators behind closed doors earlier this year, was the subject of considerable debate in the Senate Monday.

"We are skirting pretty close to classified information," ABM critic Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., observed at one point.

Both Symington, who wants the chart made public, and Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn.,

an ABM supporter who wants it kept secret, agreed that the chart shows how many Soviet missiles would be needed to knock out the U.S. Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile bases. The ABM is designed to protect those bases.

Baker said the chart "supports the decision by President Nixon for deployment of the ABM system."

area well. All of the bodies have been found in relatively secluded areas on the fringes of the rapidly growing area.

However, all the victims except the first were not hidden and were found shortly after their deaths.

Asked if the killer left the bodies in such a way that they would easily be discovered, Harvey said, "It kind of looks that way."

The young women killed in the area have ranged in age from 13 to 23. They were, in addition to Miss Mixer, Mary Flezar, 19, Joan Schell, 20, Maralynn Skelton, 19, and Dawn Basom, 13.

But Symington said it shows that the ABM is not worth its large cost. "If the chart were declassified," he said, "it would show the relatively few additional missiles needed to overcome the Safeguard."

He inserted into the Congressional Record a letter to the New York Times by Stanford University physicist Dr. Wolfgang Panofsky, who, having seen the chart, concluded:

"If the number of Soviet SS9s (missiles) grew at the rate forecast by Secretary (of Defense Melvin R.) Laird, and if as a result Minutemen were endangered at some future time, then the danger would be exactly the same a few months later, even if Safeguard worked perfectly."

Laird has argued that the danger of a Soviet first strike with SS9s about 1975 is a major reason why Safeguard should be deployed to protect the U.S. missiles.

Baker raised the issue in the Senate by criticizing Symington's June 1 statement that "if that chart were made public, I believe this argument (over the ABM) would be over."

Baker said the chart "shows how Safeguard would engage a Soviet threat of increasing size" and how the Spartans and the Sprites would be brought into play.

Jury Returns Guilty Verdict

Stephen J. Branstrom was found guilty in Circuit Court Monday to a charge of hindering, obstructing, and interfering with officers in the performance of their duties.

Branstrom, who pleaded innocent, was arrested last Dec. 30 for trying to prevent Department of Natural Resources officers James Walker and Frank Opolka from leaving his family's property.

The officers testified they were on the property removing two illegally taken deer they had found in a shed and when they tried to issue a search warrant to Branstrom he refused the warrant and blocked the officers exit with his truck.

Branstrom was then placed under arrest and the keys to his truck were forcibly removed from his person. Officer Walker moved Branstrom's car out of the way, and Branstrom was taken to the Delta County jail. Branstrom will be sentenced on June 18. The charge carries a maximum sentence of two years in prison.

Thurmond, Kennedy Trade Verbal Blows

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was a sharp exchange on the Senate floor and it started when Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., stumbled over the pronunciation of the name "Figueres."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., interjected the pronunciation. "One of Mr. Figueres' supporters, are you?" Thurmond flared back.

"No," Kennedy answered. "I am able to pronounce his name correctly, and I would think that when you are using it in making charges against an individual, it is helpful to pronounce his name correctly, with due respect to an individual."

Expert

"Are you trying to correct my pronunciation in English, or are you holding yourself up as an English teacher?" Thurmond demanded.

"Are you an expert because you went to Harvard?" Thurmond asked. "What was your record at Harvard?"

It all had to do Monday with Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

Thurmond, in another of his speeches demanding Douglas' resignation, accused the jurist of association through the Parvin Foundation with an institution in Latin America which he called "a well spring of Marxist thought and activities."

Keep Quiet

Kennedy defended the institution, the Inter-American Center for Economic and Social Studies, as a fighter against communism. Thurmond added that the center had CIA as well as Parvin backing.

tary pressure on the enemy during the Paris talks, said he hopes Nixon's decision to pull out 25,000 men signifies a change in policy which will be followed by additional withdrawals and a reduction in the level of fighting.

But the assistant Democratic leader declined to join Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., and George S. McGovern, D-S.D., in calling the troop pullout inadequate.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the assistant minority leader, chided the doves for criticizing Nixon for not going far enough in the pullout. He said they were getting a beginning of what they demanded and now were complaining about it.

The center, Thurmond went on, was also a training school for "left-wing radicals under the tutelage of such leftist Latin politicians as Juan Bosch, former president of the Dominican Republic, and Jose Figueres, former president of Costa Rica."

Thurmond said that Douglas as president of the Parvin Foundation was a board member of the center. Douglas has resigned his Parvin post.

Thurmond twice told Kennedy to "keep quiet" and at one point said he was asking a "foolish question."

Kennedy said Thurmond has made a series of charges against Douglas for outside activities without citing one instance in which the jurist has had to disqualify himself from a case because of them.

Mickey Raboine, junior linebacker from Stephenson, was awarded the Voltaire Perkins Trophy at Northland College in Ashland, Wis. Raboine received the award as the most valuable player on the 1968 football team. Raboine led the team in tackles last fall and earned his third major letter in football.

Dewey Bellisle, one of the most versatile athletes in the history of Menominee High School, has won the Barbara Silverthorne Memorial Trophy as the school's outstanding athlete for 1968-69. Bellisle competed in football, basketball and track through most of his high school career although he passed up track this spring.

Peterson's Restaurant of Gwinn eked out a well deserved 3-2 victory over Werner Maki and Woody's Bar team last week in a Tri-City League clash. Tom Brock was the winning pitcher and Maki absorbed the loss. Brock was tagged for five hits while Maki was bounced around for seven. Terry Sayen led the Gwinn squad with three hits.

Namath Disappointed

With Help From Jets

STATELINE, Nev. (AP)—Joe Namath says he is "a little disappointed" with the New York Jets, the team that gave him $400,000 to sign a pro football contract.

Namath is now out of pro football, at least he announced his retirement last Friday rather than sell his interest in a New York City tavern.

Pro football Commissioner Pete Rozelle said gamblers frequent the Bachelors III and ordered Namath to sell his one-third interest in the place or face suspension.

Namath said Monday the Jets supplied him with a list of unsavory characters who frequent the place, but had made "no attempt to help since."

"I was a little disappointed," added the hero of the Jets 16-7 Superbowl win over the Baltimore Colts.

Namath was sitting in a Lake Tahoe casino, surrounded by newsmen and gamblers. "I did not do anything wrong," he said at least twice.

Only two questions put to the Jets Quarterback drew "no comment" replies from him: "Would he be interested in buying into one of Nevada's legal gaming operations? Has he asked a Las Vegas bank for a loan to finance buying a casino?"

There had been a report that Namath was looking for such a loan.

Namath is in Nevada to play in the eighth annual Hurrar's Invitational Golf Tournament. The same Bill Harrah who runs the tournament runs the largest gambling operation in the state.

Namath played a rain-soaked practice round Monday. He was on the 15th hole when a press conference with him was about to begin.

He arrived an hour later clad in a windbreaker and mod fashion wide striped pants, and twirled a drink in his hands as he answered questions.

Namath said he contacted the district attorney's office about hiring an off duty investigator to work at his New York bar, after the Jets' report of gamblers seen there. He did not say whether they ever hired the investigator.

Kings, Rangers Trade Forwards

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Kings announced Monday the acquisition of veteran right wing Leon Rochefort and center Dennis Hextall from the New York Rangers in exchange for winger Real Lemieux.

Kings' owner Jack Kent Cooke reported from Montreal that he had completed the National Hockey League deal with Rangers' General Manager Coach Emile Francis.

There had been a report that Namath was looking for such a loan.

Namath is in Nevada to play in the eighth annual Hurrar's Invitational Golf Tournament. The same Bill Harrah who runs the tournament runs the largest gambling operation in the state.

Petrocelli Off Ice Cream; Leads League In Homers

By The Associated Press
A year ago, Rico Petrocelli was an ice cream hound, a man who "used to have a half-gallon every two days."

But now "that's out" says the Boston Red Sox shortstop who's proving that he's not an ice cream hitter.

During the entire 1968 season, Petrocelli hit 12 home runs and drove in 46 while hitting .234 in 123 games.

In 1969, without ice cream, in 53 games the Red Sox slugger has delivered 20 round trippers and batted in 36 and is second to Minnesota's Rod Carew in hitting with a .339 average.

All because of giving up ice cream?

Petrocelli admits part of the battle has been playing every day.

"The record that's important to me," he said, "is that I've played in all our games this year. That must be a record for me."

Monday night Rico's 20th home run put the Red Sox shortstop three ahead of his nearest rivals in the American League homer derby as Boston edged Minnesota 5-3.

Teammate Carl Yastrzemski delivered his 14th circuit clout with a runner on as Ray Jarvis picked up his third win in five decisions with relief help from Vincente Romo and Sparky Lyle.

In other action, Kansas City trounced the New York Yankees 7-1 and Cleveland took the Chicago White Sox 5-1 in the American League while Cincinnati downed the Chicago Cubs 4-1 in the only day and National League contest.

The Twins, down 5-1 going into the seventh, rallied for two runs after two were out in the seventh on three hits and two walks. But Romo came in with the bases loaded to get Leo Cardenas on a bounce out to end the threat.

In the ninth, the Twins managed to get two men on but Romo struck out Rich Reese and Graig Nettles to end the game.

After the game, Petrocelli headed for the Red Sox dressing room and a bowl of what he calls "hitter cereal."

Lolich Equals Strikeout Mark; Pilots Nip Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Mickey Lolich wanted to give his 13-hour-old daughter an initial birthday present Monday night — but his teammates and the Seattle Pilots wouldn't cooperate.

Lolich, making his first start since being hit by a line drive on Oakland May 27, tied his own team strikeout record of 16 set only 2 1/2 weeks ago but the Pilots pulled out a tense, 10-inning, 3-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

"I was pulling for one more strikeout so I could set a new record," he said. "I had to do something for my little girl."

Did pride over his newborn put something extra in his pitching arm?

"I'm enough of a showman where if I would have broken the record I would have said I broke it for my new daughter," Lolich smiled, seemingly oblivious to the loss.

"I had that answer all set in my mind."

He had 16 strikeouts going into the eighth but couldn't get another one. The modern major league record is 18.

But Lolich didn't get the loss. He was removed for a pinch hitter in the ninth inning, bringing in reliever Pat Dobson in the 10th.

With the score 1-1 the Pilots struck for a pair of runs. Gerry McNertney walked, former Tiger Ray Oyler hit a sacrifice bunt, pinch hitter Merritt Ranew was intentionally walked, then pinch hitter Don Mincher lined a run scoring single to rightfield. Gus Gill followed with a sacrifice fly to make it 3-1.

Detroit threatened in the bottom of the inning when relief pitcher Diego Segui allowed a single to Mickey Stanley, a walk to Dick McAuliffe and a run scoring single by Al Kaline. But John O'Donoghue came in and struck out Willie Horton with the bases filled and John Gelnar pitched to Tom Mat-

Jolly Rogers Trip Stroh's

Jolly Roger and Mead Paper turned in impressive victories in Escanaba Softball League play at Memorial Field Monday evening, scoring victories over Stroh's Beer and the Michigan Hotel respectively.

Bob Irish, Ray Payment and Bill Els were the only Stroh's players who could manage hits off Jolly Roger pitcher Jug Bourdeau in Jolly Roger's 5-1 victory. Mark Miller gave up six hits and was tagged with the loss for Stroh's.

Mammy Bourdeau led the winners at the plate with a double and a single and Phil Dambrosio, Dale Demars, Jim Almonroeder and Larry Bero chipped in with one hit apiece. Jolly Roger started the scoring with a three-run rally in the second inning and added single runs in the fourth and fifth innings.

John Martinac's two home runs paced Mead Paper to a 13-4 victory over the Michigan Hotel in the nightcap. Ricky Lancour picked up the victory on the hill for Mead Paper while Harold Porath was charged with the defeat.

chick who grounded out ending the game.

Winning pitcher Mary Pattin, 6-4, was nearly as brilliant as Lolich. He struck out nine in his nine innings and the combination of 25 strikeouts between the clubs tied the American League record for a night game.

"I was walking the dugout floor (in the 10th) and biting my nails," he said. "On the third out I jumped up and shook everybody's hand."

Dick Simpson led off the game by hitting Lolich's first pitch for a home run in the lower leftfield stands, his second of the year. But Lolich was the one to tie it up. He singled home Matchick, who had walked and moved to second on a ground-out in the fifth.

When Lolich struck out 16 on May 23 against California he didn't know it until the end of the game. But Monday night he knew it beforehand.

"The guys were talking about it and keeping track in the dugout," he said. "They weren't as quiet as they were last time."

MANISTIQUE Wood, Mueller Win Election To Area Board

Leon Wood and William Mueller won election to the Manistique Area Board of Education in Monday's annual school election.

Wood polled 665 votes, just nine ahead of second-running Mueller, who drew 659 votes.

Five candidates were competing for the two open seats on the board. The terms are four years each.

Wood is a Hiawatha Township resident and is employed by the Inland Lime & Stone Co. as a stacker operator. Mueller is a driver-salesman for Toby's Specialties and resides at 302 Terrace St., Manistique.

Wood was a nominee for school board one year ago, but withdrew his candidacy to support Robert Knopf, who was elected to the board and is now treasurer. Mueller never before has sought an elective office.

Mrs. James (Verna) Goudreau of Doyle Township placed third with a vote total of 384. Mrs. John Moffat, 235 Range St., was fourth with 339 votes and incumbent Earl H. LaBrasseur, 318 Range St., placed fifth with 281 votes.

All totals are unofficial.

Wood carried six of the eight precincts with the exception of the two city precincts. Mueller ran first in both city precincts and second in the four township precincts and third in two others.

A total of 2,328 votes were cast in the election. Two townships—Inwood and Seney—are not eligible to vote since they belong to different school districts.

LaBrasseur, a 20-year incumbent, was defeated as he sought his seventh term on the board. Incumbent Robert Orr did not seek reelection due to a recent illness.

Wood and Mueller will be seated during reorganization of the board in July when officers are elected. Other board members include Denton Nelson, president; Mrs. Margaret Waters, secretary; Robert Knopf, treasurer; and trustees Mrs. Jeanne Larson and Ralph Gillam.

Council Delays Parking Action

City Council declined to take any action on the off street parking plan until opinion petitions being circulated among downtown property owners are completed.

Two petitions were presented to Council Monday night with 34 signers against the plan and only 11 in favor.

The petitions were circulated by G. Leslie Bouschor, retired county clerk.

A total of 54 property owners would be affected by the original plan which called for condemnation of some property and assessments against property owners to provide downtown parking. Mayor Leo DeMars also is circulating petitions, with the consent of Council, to determine sentiment toward the proposal.

Property owners are balking at the proposed assessments they would have to pay under the original plan. Council indicated it would try to compromise with a "new plan, less hurtful to most people and still come up with more downtown parking."

Councilmen made a site inspection after recessing Monday night's short meeting to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

'Missing' Family Home Safely

The A. J. Smith family of Thompson returned to their home Sunday morning unaware that they were the object of an intensive search by Michigan State Police, relatives and two airplanes.

Relatives reported Mr. and Mrs. Smith and their five children missing late Saturday night. The Smiths left in mid-afternoon Saturday for fishing in the Thunder Lake area. Instead of returning home Saturday night, they spent the night with relatives in a cabin on the Manistique River.

At 7 a.m. Sunday morning Michigan State Police, relatives and friends, two planes (one a Department of Natural Resources plane and the other piloted by Vern Bernard) began searching the isolated Manistique River - Thunder Lake area for the family.
